County conducts Bluegrass Pipeline foru

By Roger McKinney, Reporter

A public forum to discuss the status of the Bluegrass Pipeline Project in Pendleton County was held upstairs in the old Falmouth courthouse on November 18. The pipeline is a joint proposal of Williams Companies Inc. and Boardwalk Pipeline Partners. The plan is to lay a line from Mercer, Pennsylvania and Marshall, West Virginia to Breckinridge County, Kentucky. At that point the pipeline would connect with an existing line that runs on to the Gulf Coast. From Pennsylvania to Louisiana the pipeline would stretch 1,100 miles. The line would run 180 miles across Kentucky. The pipeline is slated to transport natural gas liquids to refineries that will transform the NGLs into various products, including plastic. Once methane (the gas we use to heat our homes) is extracted from the natural gas what you have left are the impure hydrocarbons: propane, butane, ethane and benezene. These gases are the natural gas liquids or NGLs. Many citizens fear that the NGLs pipeline will present physical and financial dangers. Organized opposition to the Bluegrass Pipeline is ongoing.

The forum on November 18 was monitored by Pendleton County Judge/Executive Henry Bertram and County Attorney Jeff Dean. Also sitting behind the dais with Judge Bertram was the Bluegrass Pipeline Project Team, which included, Williams Project Executive Bill Lawson, Boardwalk Pipeline Partners General Counsel Mike McMahon, Bluegrass Outreach Team Member Keith Isbell, Williams' Director of Right of Way and Permitting Jim Curry and Williams' Director of Environmental Health and Safety Ron Whitaker.

The forum was well attended. Those citizens who wished to ask questions were placed on the agenda and seated in front of the old courtroom near the podium. Williams Project Executive Bill Lawson gave a ten-minute presentation that gave an overview of the project and the two companies. He stressed that Williams and Boardwalk cared deeply about safety. Some 30 individuals addressed the panel, asked questions and expressed their concerns.

Retired Fish and Wildlife Officer Barth Johnson told the audience that land owners who were negotiating with company representatives regarding the selling of an easement should consider their neighbors downstream as well as those who lived upstream and upwind. He said an accident on the seller's property could endanger everyone

District purchases new reading series for elementary schools

Board honors athletic and artistic achievement

By Roger McKinney, Reporter

Pendleton County School Superintendent Anthony Strong recommended the purchase of reading textbooks from Pearson Learning for Northern and Southern Elementary schools. The series being purchased is the Scott Foresman Reading Street version 2013. This series is correlated to the new common core standards adopted by the Kentucky Department of Education. The program is researched based and has been proven to assist teachers as a tool to improve reading. Due to state cuts in funding over the past seven years, the district has not purchased

"Our students are suffering from the legislators lack of funding for education," stated Superintendent Strong, "It bothers me that our local taxpayers must pick up the burden of doing a job that should be done by Frankfort, but we can't go any longer because our children deserve better.'

Training for staff will take place in December and the use of textbooks will begin in January.

Superintendent Strong talked about the adoption of EpiPen use within the Pendleton County School System. EpiPens would be employed to counteract an allergic reaction experienced by a student. Superintendent Strong said that he had consulted Dr. Brian Schack regarding the subject. Dr. Schack said that he would have to prescribe EpiPens for each of the schools. Several sizes would have to be purchased. The EpiPens have a shelf life of one year. The superintendent said that there was a possibility that a pharmacy would donate the EpiPens to the school system. The Pendleton County School Board discussed the issue at length and agreed that the matter required further exploration. Superintendent Strong and the Board paid tribute to students who achieved success during the fall in sports and in musical expres-

A lady stood up from the audience and asked if the company had indeed purchased 66% of the easements in Pendleton County. Jim Curry said that this was true. The lady in the audience asked, "What are we doing in this meeting then?" "To share information," several people, answered in chorus.

Another lady stood up from the audience and asked where the pipeline would run through Pendleton County? The answer was, not all the easements had been purchased so they couldn't say for sure. The lady said "I might not be the slickest marble in the bag, but I know something, I know that you know." The answer to her last comment was that the land owners who had sold their easements had asked the company to keep the information in confidence. At the appropriate time the information would be made public.

A new business is moving closer to Falmouth and hopes to realize $1 million in sales in 1989. Larry Wenstrup is moving his L & W Lumber Supply Co. of Butler to the Menzie bottom area just off of U.S. 27. Larry, his brother Mike and his wife Linda, will be operating the company.

The family of Arnold and Garnetta Ramsey will honor their parents with an Open House to celebrate their 50th Wedding Anniversary Sunday, December 4, at their residence on Stump Lane of the Neave community.

Mr. J. Paul Eckler and Mrs. Ruth Massey Eckler will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, December 11, 1988 in the Convention Center at General Butler State Park in Carrollton. Jamie Sissel, a 1988 graduate of Pendleton Memorial High School, is among those chosen for Campbellsville College Collegiate Chorale. A freshman at Campbellsville College, she is the daughter of James and Dollie Sissel of Falmouth. Ralph Kyle, Pendleton County 4-H'er, is among 40 from Kentucky who will be attending the National 4-H Congress Dec. 2-9 in Chicago. Kyle was the state record book winner in 1986-87 with his record book on pets and small animals. The Pendleton County Girls Basketball team recently completed a 10-week program at the new high school fitness center. Janis Appel, in her first year as head coach, participated in the program with the girls. Roger Reidinger, PCHS Strength and Conditioning Coordinator, conducted the program.

We have seen similar gains when agri-business leaders.

This week, as we celebrate Thanksgiving with family and friends, many of us will undoubtedly stop and think about what we are thankful for.

Here in Kentucky, the list is certainly long.

We can begin with the hard work that our farmers do to make this meal and every other one as well - possible. Only three states have more farms than we do, and few if any can boast of our diversity, with ten commodities bringing in $100 million or more. We rank among the top 20 states in at least eight of those. That includes corn and soybeans, both of which are on track for bumper crops. Corn is projected to produce 247 million bushels, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service, which would be an amazing 138 percent increase over 2012s tough growing season. Soybeans, meanwhile, should see their numbers jump by 37 percent, to more than 80 million bushels. Earlier this month, I had the opportunity to discuss this great news both at a forum sponsored by Kentucky Farm Bureau for commodity leaders and at another meeting with

P.C. NJROTC cadets pick up trash along U.S. 27

Dead Editor,

On Saturday, October 23, the Pendleton County High School NJROTC unit picked up trash along 10 miles of Highway 27, from Campbell County line to Route 22 West. The 36 NJROTC cadets were joined by nine members of the 8th grade ROTC Club from Sharp Middle School and 14 chaperones. The group filled 136 bags with trash and uncovered many tires. Most of the trash included fast food bags and wrappers, beer and soda cans and bottles. Additionally, 12 bags with aluminum beer and soda cans were taken to a recycling center instead of unnecessarily filling our local dump.

Several years ago, another study found that about nine out of 10 adults in the state said they had at least one person outside of family on whom they could depend in times of emergency. That as much as anything highlights the strength of our churches and charitable and civic organizations.

There is not enough room to mention the many other areas where we have been blessed, but I would like to end with one more: Our state parks, which go above and beyond every year to make Thanksgiving special for those who visit.

All 17 resort parks, including our own Blue Licks Battlefield State Resort Park, will be serving food from noon to 8 p.m., and the meal includes not just the classic turkey and dressing but also baked ham, fried chicken, green beans, mashed potatoes and pumpkin pie. It is a great place to go if you and your family are looking for an alternative to eating at home.

I wish all of you a Happy Thanksgiving, and I look forward to talking with you in the weeks and months ahead as the General Assembly readies for another legislative session, which will begin in early January.

"Hypocrisy"

All of us are probably guilty in one way or other of being a bit hypocritical. One could 'boil down' the meaning as, "An attempt to be what one is not," or putting on a false appearance of virtue or religion.

We find pleasure in directing this weakness on politicians, preachers, school teachers or anyone who is visible and is caught in a weak moment.

Some people are not aware, but they display their weakness as if on a giant billboard. A familiar one is a church van, with bold letters on both sides displaying the church name passing other vehicles on the interstate doing 75 when the speed limit is 65. Or it may be a state police car cruising at 85 or 90 going nowhere in a mighty big hurry.

I remember when I was in my mid-teens and was in a Sunday school class with boys my age. Our teacher was very good and gave us a frank lesson on sex. He was telling us that sex was a wonderful and beautiful creation, but God expected us to keep ourselves pure and chaste until marbut that lesson was short lived.

My older friend frequented a place called "Club Moonlite," located on US 27, near the Pendleton County line. I overheard him talking to one of his friends. He was telling him about how my Sunday school teacher was at the club on Saturday night drinking beer, dancing with a buxom blond, and patting and rubbing her in places that should have been off limits for a married man. Thus his good lesson

Another event that caused concern happened at a fund raiser auction I was doing at a country club. The fund raiser was for a good cause. My youngest son, who was about 7 or 8 years-old, accompanied me.

That particular day at his school was highlighted by a leading medical person who gave a lesson on how drinking alcohol affected one's health. She told of how drinking alcohol killed precious brain cells and caused other various health issues, as well as being responsible for family breakdowns.

This medical person attended the fundraiser that night and as she entered, she was carrying a fifth of Jack Daniels. My son said, "Dad, she said that alcohol was bad for your health." Her lesson was not effective.

When I see political leaders on the state and national levels, I can't help but believe that a little hypocrisy

When a vote is taken on an issue and you see 98% of Republicans voting one way and 98% of Democrats voting the opposite way, one has to conclude that something is a little "cockeyed."

A young lady asked her wise father, "Dad, how do I pick a good honest man for a husband? It seems that all the dates I have had are friendly and have treated me well." Her Father answered, "Observe how he treats all other people: waitress, secretaries, mechanics, custodians, school teachers, preachers and his parents. That is the way he will treat

At the Community-wide Veterans Day Celebration on November 11, 2013 NJROTC

Cadet Carynn Blumberg was awarded first place in the Pendleton County High School Veterans Day Essay Contest. The following is the written text of that

When many of us hear the words, "Veterans Day" we think we know all about it. But the truth is, many of us don't. We think of men and women in uniform marching down a street lined with cheering crowds and littered with flowers and confetti. We think of the smiles they wear and the pride that swells in our hearts and we give thanks for living in a rich country protected by brave people like these.

But many of those brave people weren't always smiling. Some were grimacing in pain as bullets were pulled from their bodies. Some were fighting back tears as they stood by the casket of a best friend or even a sibling. Tickertape isn't the only thing in a soldier's life - sadly, heat, blood, sweat, dirt and chaos are all part of the equation as well. We, as a whole nation, need to take a step back to see what being a veteran really means.

After the attacks on Pearl Harbor my grandfather joined the Navy and served on an aircraft carrier in the Pacific Theater. A close family friend named Jack Kesselring was on a destroyer in Pearl Harbor the morning of the attacks. The ship was sunk, but Jack survived to serve on two more vessels and both of those sunk beneath him as well. I never knew him but I honor his brav-

My father is an extremely talented and well-known sculptor. He created the sculpture of the Green Beret on the horse at Ground Zero. He personally met a few of the Special Forces soldiers, who went out after 9/11 and spoke with Vice President Joe Biden. Currently he is out in Las Vegas working on a monument that will include eighteen largerthan life figures, four of them bronze from our modern day and the rest, a ghost like silver, each of them from one different war America has been in.

So, what does Veterans Day mean to me after all? It means sacrifice. It means honor. It means bravery. It means facing and accepting the fact that there's no guarantee you'll ever see your family again. It means that we should indeed be proud of these extraordinary examples of selflessness, take a day of our lives to thank them, and never forget who we are and why because of

Bringing good spirit back to "Black Friday"

Logos Christian Bookstore in Alexandria Kentucky has found a way to bring the true Spirit of Christmas to an otherwise hectic, and sometimes overwhelming, day after Thanksgiving commonly known as "Black Friday." Rather than concentrating on early opening times, huge ads, and a few loss leader "gotchas" to stress over, Logos has turned the first official day of the shopping season into "GIVE THANKS FRIDAY." Give Thanks Friday is a way that customers can choose to shop locally while knowing that a portion of their purchases are specifically contributed to local charity. This year, a portion of every purchase made on both Give Thanks Friday and Small Business Saturday, November 29 and 30, will be given to the South Family Resource Center and the Goshorn Missionary Family (local family serving as missionaries in Peru). The South Family Resource center currently provides weekend Back Pack Kits to 56 students every week. These packs provide food for students who quite possibly would not have anything to eat until they returned to school on Monday. Food items donated at Logos this weekend will be placed in kits for distribution by volunteers at Plu Creek Christian church on Sunday, December 8.

The Goshorn family, from Alexandria, has been working very diligently the past three years preparing to work as missionaries to Peru. They are completing language and cultural training in Costa Rico and will soon be serving in Peru. Tim, Jennifer, Daniel, Matthew and Katherine appreciate your support and would love to have you partner with them serving the people of Peru. For more information on their mission visit www.goshornstepbystep.

In addition, anyone contributing to the South Family Resource Back Pack program by bringing in food products on these days will receive a discount on their purchases. Contributions to the Back Pack program will earn a 10% discount for any one category (entrees, breakfast or snacks) filled or a 15% discount for completing all three categories of the shopping list. While at the store be sure to register for some exciting door prize give aways, including two $100 gift certificates to the Back Pack items will be assembled into kits on December 8 by volunteers in service at the Plum Creek Christian Church, 13455 Alexandria Pike, Butler KY. Everyone is invited to come help.

Less stressful traveling on Thanksgiving

People travel far and wide come Thanksgiving weekend. No matter how people choose to travel, many find holiday traveling to

The motorist group AAA says that roughly 43 million people travel at least 50 miles from home for the Thanksgiving holiday. With so many people flying the friendly skies or on roads or railways, there is a good chance individuals will encounter delays and some frustration. Minimizing the challenges associated with holiday travel means following a few tips that can make the experience a bit

• Book flights early. Come the holidays, last-minute deals are few and far between. The best way to ensure you get the flight time you want for the best price is to book as early as possible. Some people book their tickets a year in advance if they know they will be traveling on Thanksgiving. However, a safe bet is to do so two months before so you will have the pick of options, including seating family members together and avoiding connecting flights.

• Cheaper flights can be had on Thanksgiving. If you want to avoid crowds and save a little money, consider traveling on Thanksgiving Day. Long lines and bigger crowds peak the Wednesday before Thanksgiving. That's because travelers want to be at their destinations in advance of the food being placed on the table. However, if you're traveling west, you may be able to take advantage of the time change and book an early flight and still make it to dinner in time.

• Know security protocol. Visit the airline's Web site or give a call in advance to learn the Dos and Don'ts of your carrier. Since the terror attacks on September 11th more than a decade ago, security measures at airports have continually changed. Know the restrictions in regard to liquids or toiletries to save time and ensure you make your flight.

• Pack lightly. Baggage check and claim can take up precious minutes. If your Thanksgiving trip will be brief, bring along only one carry-on per person (the amount allowable for most airlines) and easily board the airplane.

• Arrive early. Arrive at the airport as early as you can, ideally two to three hours before your flight. This enables you to check in bags and get to the gate. Should you have to make changes to seats at the gate or take care of any other necessities, you'll have peace of mind that being late won't hamper those plans.

• Save up personal time and leave work early. Peak travel times for Thanksgiving driving include Wednesday afternoon when many businesses close early for the holiday. If you leave then, there's a as possible.

traffic with the thousands of other travelers who decided to get a head start by leaving at 3 p.m. If you can, take off from work on Wednesday and leave in the morning. Or do the bulk of your driving • Pack a GPS device with you. Busy holidays could mean a great-good chance you will be sitting in er propensity for accidents or traf-fic jams. Don't be caught off guard by not knowing a detour around the hold-up. Having a GPS with you can help you to stay abreast of traffic patterns and get out of trouble should your main travel route become blocked. • Prepare the vehicle. There's nothing worse than having turkey and pumpkin pie on your mind when you are standing roadside with an inoperable car. Schedule a tune-up before travel to make sure you are set for the trip. Have a spare tire ready and any tools necessary should you have a blow-out.

• Pack snacks. Hunger pangs can make tempers rise when you are stuck in traffic. Although there will be plenty of food at your destination, pack snacks (especially if kids are traveling) so that falling sugar levels or grumbling stomachs do not add stress to the trip.

Millions of people will be visiting friends and relatives for the Thanksgiving holiday. Keep travelrelated stress at bay by having a travel plan and setting off as early around the corner, people will soon flock to the roads to visit and celebrate with family and friends. The Kentucky Office of Highway Safety (KOHS) reminds all travelers, whether they are heading across the country or across town, to ensure a safe arrival and a happy holiday by buckling up - "Every Trip, Every Time."

"The risk of being involved in a serious or deadly car crash increases when the number of cars on the road increases," Transportation Cabinet Secretary Mike Hancock said. "The long Thanksgiving weekend is one of the busiest travel times of the year.'

During the Thanksgiving period last year in Kentucky, seven people were killed in motor vehicle not wearing seat belts.

There were 746 highway fatalities in Kentucky in 2012, with 576 killed in motor vehicles. More than half of those killed in motor vehicles were not restrained.

'Kentucky undoubtedly experiences far too many fatalities that could have been avoided with the simple use of a seat belt," KOHS Director Bill Bell said. "Clearly this is an indication that people are not taking Kentucky's seat belt law seriously or they are not aware of the huge risk taken by not buck-

"Motorists should buckle up every time they go out, but be especially vigilant at night," Bell said. "Statistics show that passenger vehicle occupants are least likely to buckle up in the evening

Of the 576 motor vehicle fatalities last year, 215 occurred between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. Of these nighttime fatalities, 67 percent involved vehicle occupants who were unrestrained.

"All too often, we see crash victims who were caught up in the excitement of the Thanksgiving holiday and didn't arrive safely at their destination," Hancock said. Why lung cancer strikes nonsmokers Most people know that smoking causes cancer, but may not realize how many nonsmokers get lung cancer, too. Every year, about 16,000 to 24,000 Americans die of lung cancer, even though they have never smoked. In fact, if lung cancer in nonsmokers had its own separate category, it would rank among the top 10 fatal cancers in the United States. Unfortunately, a perception that patients contributed to their own illness by smoking harms both smokers and nonsmokers with lung cancer. Lung cancer expert Joan H. Schiller, MD, of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas, coauthored a study measuring public attitudes about lung cancer. The study found that 70% of participants had a negative attitude about lung cancer. By comparison, only 22% had a negative attitude about breast cancer.

Even so, researchers have made lot of progress over the past decade in understanding some of the causes of lung cancer in nonsmokers and how to treat it.

 Radon gas. The leading cause of lung cancer in nonsmokers according to the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is exposure to radon gas. It accounts for about 20,000 deaths from lung cancer each year. Radon occurs naturally outdoors in harmless amounts, but sometimes becomes concentrated in homes built on soil with natural uranium deposits. Studies have found that the risk of lung cancer is higher in those who have lived for many years in a radon-contaminated Because radon gas can't be seen or smelled, the only way to know whether it's a problem in your home is to test for it. A Citizen's Guide to Radon, produced by the EPA, explains how to test your home for radon easily and inexpensively, as well as what to do if your levels are too high.

• Secondhand smoke. Each year, an estimated 3,400 nonsmoking adults die of lung cancer as a result of breathing secondhand smoke. Laws that ban smoking in public places have helped to reduce this danger. The American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network (ACS CAN), the nonprofit, nonpartisan advocacy affiliate of the American Cancer Society, is working to expand and strengthen these laws to further protect both smokers and nonsmokers from the dangers of secondhand smoke.

• Cancer-causing agents at work. For some people, the workplace is a source of exposure to carcinogens like asbestos and diesel exhaust. Work-related exposure to such cancer-causing materials has decreased in recent years, as the government and industry have taken steps to help protect workers. But the dangers are still present, and if you work around these agents, you should be careful to limit your exposure whenever pos-

• Air pollution. It's long been known that both indoor and outdoor air pollution contribute to lung cancer. In October 2013, the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC), part of the World Health Organization, classified outdoor air pollution as a cancer-causing agent. The IARC evaluated more than 1,000 studies and concluded that increased exposure to outdoor air pollution increases the risk of lung cancer.

Gene mutations. Řesearchers are learning more and more about what causes cells to become cancerous, and how lung cancer cells differ between nonsmokers and smokers. For example, an article published in Clinical Cancer Research explains that a particular kind of gene mutation is much more common in lung cancer in nonsmokers than smokers. This mutation activates a gene that normally helps cells grow and divide. The mutation causes the gene to be turned on constantly, so the lung cancer cells grow faster. Knowing what causes the cell changes has helped researchers develop targeted therapies, drugs that specifically target these types of mutations.

A Bountiful Thanksgiving Tradition Celebration

monster sized holidays of Halloween and Christmas, Thanksgiving receives far less attention. But Thanksgiving is a very important holiday, especially in the busy lives of Americans. It is a time to kick back and relax, watch a football game or go to a movie, and enjoy a huge feast. It's also time for us to give thanks to our God, for the things he has bestowed upon us and upon this great nation. There is no nation in the world that has more to be thankful for than us.

The first Thanksgiving was celebrated between the Pilgrims and the Indians in 1621. That first feast was a three day affair. Life for the early settlers was difficult. The fall harvest was time for celebration. It was also a time of prayer, thanking God for a good crop. The Pilgrims and the Indians created a huge feast including a wide variety of animals and fowl, as well as fruits and vegetables from the fall harvest. This early celebration was the start of today's holiday celebration. Like then, we celebrate with a huge feast.

meanings to different people. Some feel it is a day for being generous or giving thanks through unselfish deeds. Others feel it is a time to sit around with family sharing stories of the year. Still many others simply look forward to the day for football. No matter how you view Thanksgiving, one thing is for sure, filling up on turkey is an integral part of the holiday.

If turkey is the centerpiece of your celebration - as it should be then be sure to have enough turkey on hand to adequately feed all of your guests. Although they will be filling up on trimmings and side dishes as well, the first thing they will spear with a fork is a nice slice of juicy turkey. There is some conventional wisdom with regards to how big a turkey to buy. Most chefs or home cooks say that having a pound to one-and-a-half pounds for each adult at the holidav table is adequate. Children will likely eat a half or quarter of that amount. If you want to ensure leftovers, then you can increase the size of the turkey slightly.

Therefore, if 10 adults and five children will be at Thanksgiving dinner, multiply 10 by 1.5. That equals 15. Multiply 5 x .5, which equals 2.5. Add the two totals together, and you're left with 17.5 pounds. A turkey in that range should be adequate to feed guests. If your guests are known to be hearty eaters or if

Thanksgiving holds different leftovers are essential, round up to a 20-pound bird. Keep in mind it will be necessary to check the size of your oven prior to purchasing the turkey to ensure the bird will fit inside with a roasting pan. Otherwise, you may have to downsize on the turkey and cook more side dish-Once the size of the turkey is determined, it all comes down to the cooking. Naturally, the larger the bird the longer the cooking time. Instead of leaving cooking to chance, or to the unpredictable pop-up plug included with the turkey, take the time to select a reliable meat thermometer. There are standard and digital models available. Some digital thermometers enable you to insert the prong in the turkey and then stretch a heat-proof wire to the digital unit, which remains outside of the oven. This way you can set a timer or set a cooking temperature. The thermometer will beep when the turkey is done. The USDA recommends poultry be cooked to 165°. Be sure to check the temperature at the wing and the thickest part of the breast.

After cooking, let the turkey rest around 10 minutes after removing it from the oven. This will enable the juices to stay within the meat and keep it moist. And isn't a moist turkey the ultimate goal? Then slice and serve to guests.

Once turkey weight is determined, then be sure to use a thermometer to accurately tell when the bird is cooked correctly.

"Turkey Talk"

When November rolls around, turkey becomes more than just another option at the deli counter. For some, turkey becomes an obsession around this time of year, with ponderings just how much to buy, how to cook it, and the ways leftovers can be turned into delicious treats. Tom Turkey certainly takes on icon status, and that's understandable considering the turkey was once suggested as the national bird of the U.S. (the bald eagle won, however). Turkey is tasty, and it's more than just a Thanksgiving menu item. Check out these other facts about turkey:

 Wild turkeys were nearly wiped out in North America by 1940. It took the efforts of preservationists to rekindle the numbers of wild turkeys out there.

• Turkeys do more than gobble. They have been known to make up to 20 distinct vocalizations, according to animal experts.

• People are not the only ones getting fatter. Turkeys are getting larger, too. The weight of the average turkey has increased 57 percent, says the USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service. Most birds now average 28 pounds.

• U.S. federal regulations prohibit the use of hormones in turkey feed.

• The best time to see a wild turkey is on a warm clear day or in Domesticated turkeys do not fly but the wild ones can. They spend their nights in trees, flying to roosts around sunset. Turkeys are a billion-dollar industry. Annual totals are around $3.6 billion and the companies Jennie-O Turkey Store, Čargill . Value Added Meats and Butterball, LLC are industry leaders.

• At least one turkey will not make it to Thanksgiving dinner this year. That's because every year the president pardons one turkey to go on and live to see another November. All bets are off for next year, though.

 Only male turkeys display the ruffled feathers, fanlike tail, bare head, and bright beard commonly associated with these birds.

 Adult males are known as toms, young males as jakes, and all females as hens.

• Many people blame 'ol Tom Turkey for making them drowsy after the Thanksgiving meal. The truth is that other foods on the Thanksgiving table may have as much or even more of the amino acid L-tryptophan that's linked to sleepiness. Plus, you need carbohydrates to work in concert with the tryptophan for it to reach the brain and produce the sleepy

Pendleton County is not given much of a chance in district play because of their inexperience but coach Collins does not agree with what he thinks the team could look like come February.

Early on I look for us to make a lot of mistakes and show some frustration at times. However I really like the make up of this team and their attitudes toward working to get better. The tell all sign is going to be how they face adversity. Will they hang their head and fold or be strong like a nail and grow. I do think we need to improve on being more vocal with each other on the floor and get comfortable as a team in their roles. One other factor is our desire to play defense right now we still reach way too much we have to push ourselves stay in front of the ball and move our feet. ## Ladycats have a youthful rebuild in process Wildcats looking to surprise in 38th District

By Sam McClanahan, Reporter

As the 2013-14 basketball season prepares to tip-off in two weeks, much is still yet to be determined with the Wildcats

Perhaps the greatest concern for head coach Ed Cravens team will be replacing the offensive production that was supplied by Mason Monroe, who graduated last year as the second-leading scorer in school history and tied for first in all-time assists. In total, the Wildcats lost 98 percent of its team scoring and 95 percent of its team rebounding from a Cravens went on to say that as of right now the starting lineup has yet to be determined. "There's some flexibility there. A lot of it will be revealed in practice. We could potentially use a variety of many different lineup's until we have that right combination. One thing that I know the fans will be pleased with this season is our effort. ## Monroe providing offensive spark for Transy

In the early going of his freshman season at Transylvania, former Wildcat standout Mason Monroe has made quite the transition to collegiate competition while averaging double-figure scoring for the Pioneers.
The Pioneers faced Heidelburg University on November 16 to kick off the 2013-14 season. Monroe logged 21 minutes off the bench and lead the Pioneers with a team-high 12 points, as he converted all eight of his free throw attempts in a 72-59 loss. Last Saturday, the Pioneers traveled to Crestview Hills to take on the Thomas More Saints. Monroe found himself in the starting lineup and turned a solid all-around effort by hitting five of eight shots, and knocked down eight of 10 free throws to finish with 18 points. He also dished out seven assists, grabbed five rebounds and recorded two steals in a 107-95 defeat. Monroe led all players with a game-high 38 minutes.

Wildcats wrap up fourth season under Brown

As the Pendleton County Wildcats football squad wrapped up its 2013 season, head coach Terry Brown reflected on the season and gave his thoughts on the campaign.

This season sees Brown's first four-year class graduates. It's a special group to Brown, as it would be any coach. asked if he had a message for them, he responded by saying "I just hope I was able to teach them something other than football. I think a big part of my job is character building. I told my players that I hope in five years they can look back and thank our program and coaching staff for instilling in them a great work ethic, attention to detail, and how to handle adversity in their

Even though the team finished short of their goal as far as record was concerned, there were some high spots for the season.

"I was impressed with the growth of the overall program", said Brown. "Our middle school program went to the playoffs for the second consecutive Congrats to coach Smith and his staff on a job well done. Also, our 5th and 6th grade program went undefeated this year and finished it off by winning the Super Bowl. It was a very talented team that was well coached and performed to their abilities. A big thanks to Mark Beck and every coach at the youth level this year for all their hard work, and their commitment to football here in Pendleton County."

As this season ends, the focus is already turned to the next season. When asked what they felt returnees need to improve on in order to be successful Coach

Brown said, "We need to improve our overall strength. This year one of our problems was the ability to stop the run. A reason for that was our lack of strength up front. We need to make sure we make a commitment to the weight room this off-season and each player dedicates his full mind and body the team."

Coach Brown has already established some expectations for the incoming talent from the middle school next year. "We lose eight players to graduation this off-season," said Brown. "There are many starting spots left to fill for next season and I want the mind set of the incoming class is to compete for those positions. Yes, it is difficult for a freshman to get significant reps in football on varsity level, but if the mind set is to compete for those positions, they will be able to reach their full potential on the field. We had a few freshmen earn their varsity letters this year, so it isn't impossible. A great way for freshman to contribute is through special teams. If they are able to pay attention to detail, pick up the speed of the game, and commit to their responsibility, then they will earn time on specialties. '

The Outlook Sports department want to thank coach Terry Brown and his staff for being so accessible during this football

Brother Rick's message was from Acts 28:1-10 "First Impres-

Paul was a murderer, but Jesus changed Paul into a minister so he could save unbelievers. Don't judge a book by its cover. First impressions are not always as they seem, people lead you on, gossip and want you to think how special they are. People want a little taste of Jesus, but they don't want to be committed to Jesus. God will protect you from the evil of this world. God worked through Paul to change people. He could heal people, but only through Jesus. God can forgive and forget because He loves us. What does God see when He looks at us? We can't hide, He knows every thing we say or do. Confess with your heart for God.

FALMOUTH METHODIST

There have been many who have bemoaned the onslaught of anything "Christmas" prior to Thanksgiving. The argument is the fear that Thanksgiving is getting edged out and not getting the true focus that it deserves. The Christmas music, the decorations, the commercials and more have been making their presence known since the day after Halloween (or before).

On the other hand, some will argue that there is so much to do during December that the extra time helps to fit everything in, creating less last-minute stress. Whatever your own feelings on the issue, know that Thanksgiving is a state of mind and heart that should be with us throughout the year. And what a wonderful thing it could be if we would build on that "attitude of gratitude" during the Advent and Christmas season, and anytime that we gather together. In everything... give thanks!

MORGAN CHRISTIAN

The Pendleton County Cooperative of Churches (PCCC) hosted the community Thanksgiving service at Falmouth Christian last Sunday night. Area ministers from a variety of churches worked together to participate and bring a community worship experience. It is a wonderful occasion when Christians come together for worship, fellowship and mission.

Regardless of the different denominations we represent, and the variety of our belief systems, our churches working together really does reflect the unity of the Body of Christ. The sharing of our resources and ideas empowers our faith communities to do more ministry in our area, and to reach more people. And our community worship services are a testimony to ways that God continues to speak through many voices, anywhere and anytime that the people of God are gathered with one Spirit.

The primary ministry of PCCC is the St. Vincent Depaul Emergency Food Pantry. With the cold weather and holidays upon us, the demand for food assistance increases. Please consider making a food or cash donation to the Emergency Food Pantry.

November 17, Brother Kenny Allender, worship leader, led the congregation with the open-ing hymn, "Great Is The Lord." Brother Clay Sullivan preached the sermon, "Power For Life" from Ephesians 3:14-21. Brother Clay preached on three things in how to receive power for life: 1. Power through prayer. 2. Power through Holy Spirit. 3. Power through love. The memory verse for the week comes from Ephesians 3:20-21, "Now to Him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to His power that is at work within us, to Him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, forever and ever! "We Have Heard the Joyful Sound"...this sound can always be heard when we enter a church service if our hearts are ready.

Sunday the choir did a beautiful job, then the children came forward for their message, "Teach Us to Pray." Bro. Dale asked them how they learned to make a peanut butter and jelly sandwich - the answer...from watching their parents. The same goes for praying, the disciples saw Jesus pray and asked Him to teach them, but the best way to learn is by doing - so start praying.

Garrad Dennie read I John

I'll Be Alright as Soon as I Touch Calvary." Bro. Dale's message "Totally His" from Matthew 22:36-39 turned our focus to International missions and that people need the Lord. In verse 37 Jesus answered, "Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind. Verse 38 states this is the greatest and the most important commandment.

Love God and love your neighbor, give sacrificially - all these things will spread God's love, "you shall be witnesses to Me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth." Acts 1:8

Karen Davis Homemakers meet

Karen Davis Homemakers met at Loretta Simpson's on November 11 for thêir annual Thanksgiving meeting. The club enjoyed a traditional Thanksgiving meal and the meeting was called to order.

The Holiday Open House at the Extension Office was a success. The club was updated on South Family Resources Center's request for needy children. This is something the club looks forward to participating in each year. They also each brought a canned food for the Homemakers canned food drive. Plans were made for Winter Wonderland and that is always a fun time. There were two lessons given - "Managing Insects & Spiders in the Home" given by Darlene Simpson and "Textiles" by Loretta Simpson.

The club looks forward to and enjoys working in the community as needs arise. The next meeting will be December 9. Please call 859-442-7498 for more informa-

Butler's Christmas Parade - December 7

It's time to start thinking about participating in Butler's Christmas Parade!

The parade will be Saturday, December 7 with line up at noon. The parade will start at 1 p.m. from the community center at 110 Mill Street. Santa will be riding on the other fire truck so no other Santa's please. Organizations, people walking, bicycles, tractors, motorcycles, cars, fire trucks, horses and floats are welcome to participate.

After the parade Santa will meet with the children at the community center and have his picture taken with them. There will be cookies, coffee and hot chocolate for everyone to enjoy.

If you know of anyone that would be interested in being in the parade please pass this information on to them. Come out and help make this the best parade ever. The theme for this year is simple, "It's Christmas!" The city of Butler hopes to see you on the 7th!

CARD OF THANKS

Speaking on behalf of James Bryant Brown and his entire family, we want to say thank you from the bottom of our hearts for all acts of kindness, love, calls, flowers, food, visits, prayer chains and friendships during this difficult time with Bryant's illness. We have been completely devastated the past few months with this illness, because as parents we want to protect and keep our family well and safe. Makes you feel so helpless, but also makes you realize the importance of holding on to every moment with your loved one by sharing, reminiscing, laughing and having fun. In this fast moving world, it is very easy to become entrapped in things that don't amount to anything. We never forget that the only thing that matters in this world is loving our Lord, our family and our friends. Again, thank you, and please continue to pray for Bryant and our family. We are so grateful to each of you for your love, your caring and your friendship. May God bless each of you. -Brenda, Kenny, Natalie, Ronnie, Garret and Madison, and Gran Gran, Dorothy

Using manure can help reduce fertilizer bills With the high costs of fertilizer, you may want to consider animal manure from your own farm or one nearby to provide nutrients to your crops and reduce your fertilizer bill at the same time. With the growth in the Kentucky poultry industry in recent years, many areas of the state have access to poultry litter. Using animal waste not only adds nutrients to the soil but also helps build up organic materials and can increase crop yields.

To correctly apply animal waste to the land requires you to know the manure's nutrient content, best application times and methods, availability of nutrients to crops and how to balance crop nutrient needs using manures, fertilizers and other nutrient sources. The first step is to take a soil test so you'll know what nutrients the crop field needs. Next, you need to have the manure tested for its nutrient content. Nutrient content of manure varies depending on the type of animal, type and amount of bedding used, manure's moisture content and time and method of storage.

It is important to note that some manure nutrients are not as readily available to crops as commercial fertilizer's nutrients are, specially nitrogen. Its availability depends on the crop being grown, type of manure used and when and how the manure is applied. A general rule of thumb is half of the nitrogen in the poultry litter will be available to the crop.

Growing crops have the greatest ability to take up nitrogen, so manures applied during crop growth will have the least risk of nitrogen loss. The availability of phosphate from manure in the first year's crop after application is somewhat less than with commercial fertilizers while potash in manure is comparable in availability. The Cooperative Extension Service can help producers navigate through the ins and outs of using manure as fertilizer. Soil and manure testing are both available through the Pendleton County office. Several publications are also available to assist producers. Extension publication, "Using Animal Manures as Nutrient Sources" (AGR-146) and a computer spreadsheet (http://soils. rs.uky.edu/manureprogram.htm) are available to help determine application rates and fertilizer

Cooking with a pressure cooker

At the end of a busy day, many of us would love to quickly produce a tasty, nutritious, home-cooked meal with minimal effort. One way you can achieve this is by utilizing an electric pressure cooker.

Some of you may be hesitant about using a pressure cooker, either because you're not familiar with them or have heard horror stories from your mother or grandmother about pressure cookers exploding and the cooker and its contents flying across the room. As long as you correctly follow the manufacturer's operating instructions for the cooker, you can cook most foods very safely. Today's pressure cookers include more safety release valves and interlocking lids, which makes them safer than older models. Electric pressure cookers have their own heat sources that are automatically regulated to maintain the desired pressure.

foods cook three to 10 times faster compared to conventional cooking methods because the cooker does not allow air and liquids to escape the container below a pre-set pressure. As the pressure builds, the temperature inside the cooker rises above the normal boiling point.

In an electric pressure cooker,

This not only helps the food cook quickly, but it helps food retain nutrients and requires less water to prepare items. It also results in less energy used to prepare foods. You can cook multiple foods at the same time, which saves in dirty dishes and time.

In addition to following the manufacturer's directions, never fill a pressure cooker more than two-thirds full or more than halfway full for soups or stews. Realize that the hotter a food or liquid is going into the cooker, the quicker it will cook. Brown meat or poultry before putting them into the pressure cooker for best results.

Generally, foods that expand as a result of foaming and frothing, such as applesauce, cranberries, rhubarb, cereals, pastas, split peas and dried soup mixes, should not be cooked in a pressure cooker. Cleaning methods will vary depending upon the type of pressure cooker you have. Follow manufacturer's guidelines for cleaning. Store pressure cookers in a cool, dry place with the lid inverted on the body. Failing to do so can result in unpleasant odors and cause wear and tear on the lid's seal. Remember you should not try to use a pressure cooker as a pressure canner to preserve food. The quick come-up and cool-down times may not be long enough to kill all harmful microorganisms, which can cause foodborne illnesses from eating the canned foods.

went to hunt the next day. He and the boys were doing target practice the night before.

It's so hard to believe we are into the middle of November already. A lot of our leaves are still not picked up. They did burn a lot but there's still so many left to rake. It seems when we get time to rake them it's too windy. We have had a light dusting of snow and some flurries but not enough to please the boys. Kevin, 8, was so sure he would need his snow pants and boots by the time he came home from school. Our four calves are really growing. They have been behaving and staying inside their fenced in area. We aren't too excited about having anymore calf chases.

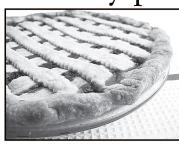

This is now after 7 a.m. and five of the children left for school. Elizabeth left around 5 a.m. to go hunting with Timothy. Meanwhile, I need to go to town as I'm running short on a lot of things. We would like to go to two different viewings tonight if possible. Our sympathy goes to the Amos Eicher family of Shipshewana, Indiana. Amos and Dad are first cousins and he passed on Wednesday. Sympathy also goes to Dan and Irene as they mourn the loss of Irene's father. Losing a parent is never easy but God helps us through the hard times if we put our trust in "Him."

This week we have been getting some sewing done. I was mostly doing mending. Those rips and tears add up fast if I leave it go for several weeks. Susan was sewing together pillow tops. We want to make pillows to fill some orders and for gifts.

Kevin wanted to try it too and went in Elizabeth's bedroom, found the piece she was working on. Needless to say she had to redo all he tried to do. Kevin will sit for hours writing. Sometimes it's his own story and sometimes it's a book he copied. He is happy if he has a writing tablet and pencil. School mornings don't seem so rushed anymore since everyone can get themselves ready. Kevin needs help to get his leg braces and shoes on but at night he can take them off alone. He thinks the braces are helping him. My friend Barb gave me some gooseberries so I tried to make a gooseberry pie yesterday. This is the recipe I used. The pie was a little tart so a bit more sugar could be added. God's blessings to all you faithful

Great turkey recipe just in time for Thanksgiving Day By Rosanna Bauman

Rosanna is Old German Baptist Brethren and lives in rural Kansas. Rosanna, age 25, is an organic farmer, writer and teacher who writes a weekly column for oasisnewsfeatures.com each Wednesday. The Brethren church is similar to the Amish in many ways, but they are more permissive with technology and photography. Rosanna and her family also raise turkeys for Thanksgiving.
Rosanna's family recipe for turkey is simple:

Get a good turkey.

 Do not overcook your good turkey. Choosing a turkey is the single most important thing besides time and temperature. I always cringe when I hear people say "Turkey is so tasteless" and think "Well, you obviously haven't eaten a Bauman turkey" It's a shame to dread the turkey at the Thanksgiving table, so here's some tips to fix that:

• Local: Finding a local turkey allows you to verify the quality of your bird. Turkeys raised in small batches on family farms are typically raised on pasture, which gives the bird great flavor and tender meat. They'll be more expensive than those turkeys the grocer gives away, but for the one meal a year that turkey is the center-piece, it's worth it.

• Fresh: The biggest reason folks purchase an unfrozen turkey is to ensure that it is fresh. Some turkeys sold at Thanksgiving are over five months old, but a fresh one (especially if it's local) is only a few days old. Fresh poultry does have a better taste, but it isn't easily described or discerned.

you purcnase a rresn turkey, you'll want to get it from the farmer/grocer as close to Thanksgiving as possible, as they usually have better cold storage facilities. After you have brought the turkey home, you will want to keep it in the bottom shelf of the refrigerator or in an ice chest covered in ice. Just remember to not open the fridge door so that the cool air stays in, or to replenish the ice as it melts. Heritage: Folks pick an heirloom bird for its great flavor, not its looks. Compared to the typical plump turkey, these lean birds will look slightly starved. This is because they have smaller breasts, so you will get less white meat and more dark meat than is usual from a turkey. Heritage birds may also have little black "ink spots" on the skin. This is pigment from the dark feathers, which we don't see on the white feathered birds. • Giblets: Please, please, don't toss that giblet pack. We just spent an entire week cleaning those gizzards until our fingers were too stiff to straighten. If you toss it, I will mourn all the hours of my life that have been wasted cleaning those gizzards. At the very least give them to your pet. There are no bones, and the organ meats are extremely nutrient-dense. In fact, I suggest you try a little culinary tourism and try them with an open mind. A lot of folks use the giblets for gravy, but we never have, It seems like a good way to waste giblets and ruin good gravy. At our house, it's a race see who will get a piece of the heart, liver or gizzard. What do we do to make the giblets attractive instead of repulsive? Nothin' special, actually. Since we don't cook our stuffing inside the turkey, we let the giblets be, and they usually cook up fine in their little plastic bag. Leaving the giblets in a bag ensures that they stay moist. A and just as flavorful. Roasting: When cooking for a crowd, we don't bother about getting a picture-perfect table turkey. We go for flavor and stress-reduction. For best results, cook the turkey with its breast- down in the roaster. This helps ensure the breast meat doesn't dry out. If you want a moist table bird, go for an oven bag. Oven bags make transfer to a serving platter easier, and still retain moisture. If you are roasting a heritage or pasture-raised turkey remember that, since they have less fat, they will roast faster. Folks only end up with dry meat from a pas-moist cooking method is the most important thing, since the giblets

are ultra-lean protein and easily dry out. Giblets should be treated like any lean meat and cooked low and slow. A gizzard roasted in this manner will be as tender as any roast, tured turkey if It's been overcooked. Seasonings: For most cooks, the seasonings and basting sauces are the most important part of the turkey recipe. For us, it's something we try to remember before we stick the turkey in the oven. Honestly, when you have a good quality turkey, the recipe is an afterthought. This fact cannot be over-stated. I don't know of anyone in my extended family who has a "turkey recipe." We usually rub the bird with liquid smoke and maybe sprinkle some garlic salt on top. That's it. Don't mess with a complicated recipe; it will just detract from your great-tasting turkey!

NOTICE

Please take notice that Duke Energy Kentucky, Inc. has applied to the Kentucky Public Service Commission for approval to revise its Demand Side Management (DSM) rate for electric service and gas service for residential and commercial customers. Duke Energy Kentucky's current monthly DSM rate for residential gas customers is ($0.039396) per hundred cubic feet and for non-residential gas customers is $0.000000 per hundred cubic feet. Duke Energy Kentucky's current monthly DSM rate for residential electric customers is $0.001988 per kilowatt-hour and for non-residential customers is $0.001104 per kilowatt-hour for distribution service and $0.001070 per kilowatt-hour for

Duke Energy Kentucky seeks approval to revise these rates as fol-lows: Duke Energy Kentucky's monthly DSM rate for residential gas customers would increase to $0.054918 per hundred cubic feet and for non-residential gas customers would remain at $0.000000 per hundred cubic feet. Duke Energy Kentucky's monthly DSM rate for residential electric customers would increase to $0.003062 per kilowatt-hour and for non-residential customers would increase to $0.001128 per kilowatt-hour for distribution service and would decrease to $0.000848 per kilowatt-hour for transmission service

The rate contained in this notice is the rate proposed by Duke Energy Ken tucky. However, the Public Service Commission may order a rate to be charged that differs from this proposed rate. Such action may result in a rate for consumers other than the rate in this notice. The foregoing rates reflect a proposed increase in electric revenues of approximately $1.59 million or 0.49% over current total electric revenues and an increase of $5.84 million or 5.98% over

A typical residential gas customer using 70 ccf in a month will see an increase of $6.60 or 9.2%. A typical residential electric customer using 1000 kWh in a month will see an increase of $1.07 or 1.2%. A typical non-residential electric customer using 40 kilowatts and 14,000 kWh will see an increase of $0.33 or 0.03%. A non-residential customer served at transmission voltage using 10,000 kilowatts and 4,000,000 kWh will see a decrease of $887.76 or (0.4%). Non-residential gas customers will see no change in their bills from this

Any corporation, association, body politic or person may by motion within thirty (30) days after publication or mailing of notice of the proposed rate changes, submit a written request to intervene to the Public Service Commission, 211 Sower Boulevard, P.O. Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602, and shall set forth the grounds for the request including the status and interest of the party. The intervention may be granted beyond the thirty (30) day period for good cause shown. Written comments regarding the proposed rate may be submitted to the Public Service Commission by mail or through the Public Service Commission's website. A copy of this application filed with the Public Service Commission is available for public inspection at Duke Energy Kentucky's office at 4580 Olympic Boulevard, Erlanger, Kentucky 41018 and on its website at http://www.duke-energy.com. This filing and any other related documents can be found on the Public Service Commission's website at http://psc.ky.gov.
